RESPONSIBILITY MAKES MAN A GLOOM; A WOMAN JUST SMILES

Men who attain high position in life as heads of vast organizations and direct the energies of thousands of workers are accustomed to being pointed out to the stranger because of the heavy burden of responsibility resting on their shoulders.

Then, too, man being a vain creature, hearing what the multitude is saying about him, is likely to become stooped and round shouldered by constant effort to carry out the popular conception of the weight of responsibility bearing down upon him; and he assumes an air of preoccupation, looking neither to right nor left, and when the people clamor for a friendly nod of greeting he withholds it because he esteems his salutations according to the valuation placed upon them by others.

Impressed with his importance such a man will endeavor to carry out the idea people have of him by the cut of his coat, the height of his collar, the shape of his hat and the color of his tie his hair will be cut appropriately and his demeanor will be solemn and profound. He would not smile publicly as he values his reputation, which is greatly.

As the people marvel at his responsibilities there will perhaps pass a demure little woman, bright and cheerful, and the crowd will take no notice of her passing. And the little woman with the shawl thrown around her shoulders-obscured by the man with the tall hat, an ascot tie and a diamond horseshoe pinif she is a mother, has a greater responsibility than the man weighed down with business cares-greater in fact than the responsibilities of any man. If her child is a daughter she has a greater responsibility than any man in the world.

This editorial was suggested by a dear good woman who wrote the following letter to The News Scimitar:

I wish your valuable paper would write something about the conduct of the boys who are just turning young men and impress upon them the need of courtesy and good manners.

As the mother of a daughter who is just beginning to go out so cially with young men, I am exceedingly interested in this question. It is very discouraging to compare the young men who visit my daughter and the young men I knew as a girl.

In those days, not so long ago, the young men I knew were cour-teous and deferential, ever alert to prove their good manners, consid-erate of their elders and careful at all times of their reputation for good

My daughter's associates are the same socially as mine were, but the young men drive their automobiles to the curb and blow their horns My daughter's associates are the same socially as mine were, but the young men drive their automobiles to the curb and blow their horns for her when they are going out. Some of them sit sprawling in the car while she gets in or out. They crowd in the front seat, drive at breakneck speed, and some of the boys smoke constantly in the house and out, and must start a dance as soon as they are in the house. I think they are just thoughtless and need to be reminded of their delinquencies, because they know better.

Further preparatory work for the meeting of delegates to the meeting of the part of the meeting of delegates to the meeting of the part of the meeting of the part of the meeting of the pa quencies, because they know better.

we have some doubt about the efficacy of an editorial addressed to the boys who loll around on their spines in autonfobiles, and drive up to homes and "honk" a couple of times for a young lady to come out and crawl in as best she can. It isn't that they are hopeless or bad or don't know better. They are lazy, and the most difficult person in the world to reach and get a respect to the Memphis of the Memphis in address during the work of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and reports received from his office indicate that the Memphis is office indicate that the Memphis meeting will be largely attended. The mind is an electric battery. It may be run down and need recharging because of overwork or neglect, and likewise it will stand constant use much better than disuse; or it may be that the connection is loose or the wiring imperfect. At any rate, when it is tested and no spark results, the first thing to do is to tighten up the connections and find if it is "all there." Whoever can stimulate the mind to give a spark is the one to

We doubt if the mothers of the boys themselves could get a response from them at their age. But there is no doubt about what the mothers of the girls can do.

We doubt if the mothers of the boys themselves could get a ponse from them at their age. But there is no doubt about at the mothers of the girls can do.

Boys of a given age, good, bad, indifferent, rich and poor, just about as much alike as the proverbial peas in a pod, ey come up to specifications. They do not exceed the requirent. There is nothing more inspiring than youth when put on mettle.

The hotel committee of the Chamber of Commerce will arrange to have a permanent information booth established at some central point for the information of visitors in the city, particularly as to available rooms in the smaller hotels and rooming houses. This was suggested Wednesday by the publicity section of the Chamber, which will see that signs calling attention to the booth's location, are placed at the rairwal stations.

J. P. They come up to specifications. They do not exceed the requirement. There is nothing more inspiring than youth when put on

The fault complained of by the mother who wrote the letter quoted above is more imagined than real. Many customs have changed within the past 20 years, but the ideals of civilized mankind have remained the same through all the ages except in eadent nations.

Some have argued that if the world accepts the single standard of morals the women must adopt the standard of the men. That is not borne out by experience.

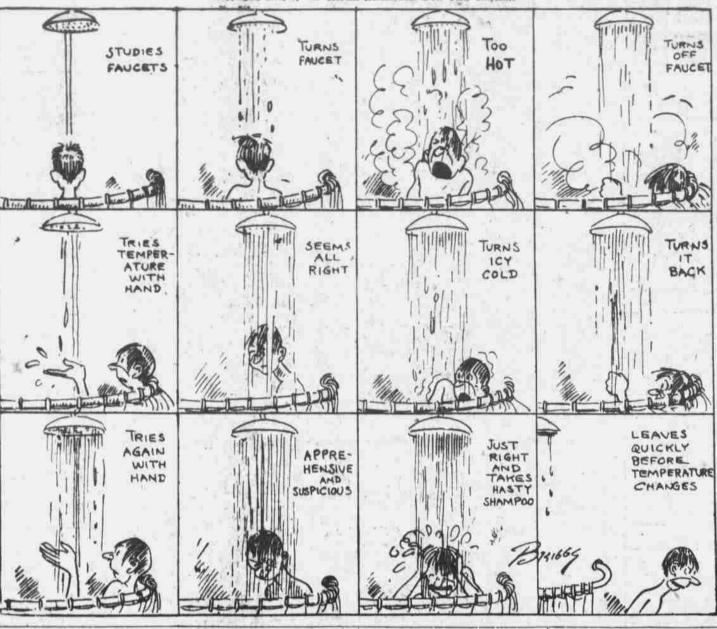

If we shall ever have what is commonly known as the "single standard" it will be when men observe the same rule of conduct as the women. In the first place, woman would not adopt a man's standard as her own, and in the second place, man would not accept her on that basis if she did.

The woman who looks with not entire favor upon the charges that have come about is not to be charged with being "old fashioned," or "not keeping up with the times." It is not to be denied that the trend nowadays is too much toward amusement on the part of young people and old as well.

Automobiles, moving picture theaters, parks and well-paved streets have a tendency to lure the people of every rank and age away from the home. It is not so much the attraction away from the home as the lack of attraction in the home. It is monotony that people grow tired of and causes them to turn to other things some livelier and others more subdued. There ought not to be anything irksome about the home. It is the thing that every natural, normal person craves, and if there is too much disposi tion to get away from its influences something is wrong.

It is no new or recent thing for mothers to take seriously the responsibility for the proper conduct of their daughters. It is not only natural but proper. Girls are wiser, we are told, than they were, but they are just as good, just as beautiful and as wholesome. No wonder the mothers guard them with such lov-

FEAR 13TH YEAR WILL BE UNLUCKY TO COTTON

Cotton growers are fearing the continued rain. They point to the fact that 1919 is the 13th year from 1906 when the cotton crop was almost ruined by rains and excessive warm weather after the cotton was open. That year the warmth and heavy rains caused cotton not only to be injured greatly but the seed in many places aprouted in the bolls, thus rendering it until for crushing and making the situation a grave one for planting the subsequent season.

HULL URGES YORK BILL IN HOUSE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22 (Spl.)—Appearing before the house committee on military affairs today. Representative Hull urged a favorable report for his bill under which former Sergt. Alvin C. York will be placed on the retired list of the army as a second lleutenant. The proposition has the indorsement of Secretary Baker, despite the fact that it would break long-established precedents.

As the secretary pointed out in a letter to Chairman Kahn, in view of the distinguished gallantry of this soldier and his equally distinguished modesty and dignity, the war department would be happy to see the recognition in question extended. No vote was taken on the proposal by the committee, aithough assurance has been given that many of the members favor it, and it is anticipated this or some similar measure will be reported to the house with a recommendation for its passage.

The only difficulty is to so word the resolution as not to permit a flood of similar measures in behalf of other soldiers who have performed heroic action, also in a lesser degree than that of the distinguished Tennessean.
